Girl Scout Life Skill #2: Decision-Making

When girls have mastered the decision-making skill, they'll be saying, "I make smarter decisions."

"When I sell cookies with my Girl Scout forever friends, we make our own decisions, like how many boxes we want to sell. We all have to agree on what we'll do with the money, which means talking it out and being okay not getting our way sometimes. And we have to figure out how to solve problems, like what to do when one of the girls is sick and can't help out. Our decisions matter."

Girls decide where and when to sell cookies, how to market their sale, and what to do with their earnings. This matters because girls must make many decisions, big and small, in their lives. Learning this skill helps them make good ones.

Earlier this year, girls had a chance to apply to be part of the planning committee, and since March, these girl committees in each region have been planning events to celebrate International Day of the Girl how they see fit. These girl-led events are free and open to all girls, and we hope to see you at one of these options!
